HOW SHE FIXED HIM.

One Way of Disposing of an Obnoxious Suitor.

He was a theatric lover, and she didn't like his style a little bit, says the New York Sun.

He was constant in his devotion, however, and that made matters worse. She had tried gentle means to get rid of him, but he had disregarded them with painful persistency.

In this moment of her desperation he felt it incumbent upon him to propose to her as men under similar circumstances so often do.

Which they wouldn't if they had any sense at all.

"Dear one," he exclaimed, hurling himself tragically at her feet, "I love you. My life is yours. Will you take it?"

She did not look like a murderess. "Mr. Singleton," she responded, with calm determination, "I will."

He gazed at her rapturously. "Don't do that," she begged, drawing back from him as if in horror. "I have taken your life, as you requested me to do and you are henceforth to all intents and purposes dead."

He seemed dazed. "I do not, Mr. Singleton," she continued, turning aside, "desire to have a dead person in the house, and if you do not go away at once I shall ring for an ambulance and have you removed to the morgue."

Then the dreadful situation in which his own precipitate folly had placed him was revealed, and he removed himself with promptness and dispatch.

ACRES OF PINK POND LILIES.

Floral Display That Delights Connecticut Railway Travelers.

One of the most beautiful floral exhibits in New England is upon "Tadpole," a famous pond lily pond on the line of the Norwich & Worcester railroad, one mile above Jewett City, Conn.

The surface of the pond is now a mass of pink and white pond lilies, and their fragrance is carried for miles by the summer winds, says the New York Sun.

No one knows how long this remarkable garden of pond lilies has been in existence, but for many years Tadpole's lilies have been sought by picnic parties from near-by counties in this state, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Cartloads of the flowers are carried away, but there seems to be no diminution in the supply.

The railroad comes suddenly upon the pond, which it divides in halves, and in an instant the passengers detect the fragrance of the lilies and throw up the windows, the better to view the beautiful and unusual sight.

In one section of Tadpole there is a large tract of lilies the blossoms of which are of so rich a pink as to be almost rose colored, it is said. They are of exceedingly rare beauty and are much sought after by collectors.

Tadpole's unromantic name comes from its being a favorite place for young frogs. It has been known by this title for years, but an effort is now making to change its name to the still more unromantic one of Clayville pond.

Fishermen of St. Pierre.
Near the west coast of Newfoundland are the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon. They are the last relics of the once great possessions of France in North America. They have a French governor and a uniformed French police. Many French fishermen make their headquarters on these islands. Their fishing-vessels are much larger than ours, and include even barkes. In stead of dories they carry sail boats. The vessel comes to anchor, and near her each boat drops its first trawl-leg overboard. Then one boat will set a zigzag trawl by tacking against the wind, another will run a straight-away course, so that the trawls, while all converging toward the vessel, do not interfere with one another. Then, too, the fishermen can in foggy weather get back to the vessel by simply under-running their trawls. Our fishermen set theirs where they think they will hook the most fish, and the vessel, instead of coming to anchor, cruises about where she put the dories over—Gustav Kobbe, in St. Nicholas.

No matter how much of a business woman may be, when the little love-god makes up his mind to shoot, there is no protection against his arrow. Yet many a young woman whose affections are already engaged, hesitates to assume the obligations of wifehood and motherhood, because she feels unfitted for them by some physical weakness or disease.

The special ailments to which the feminine organism is liable, not only unfit a woman for happy wifehood and motherhood, but incapacitate her for any sphere of action. No woman can discharge the daily duties of any position with comfort or satisfaction who is constantly weighed down by head-aches, backaches and dragging, weakening drains.

Troubles of this nature are not by any means a necessity of womanhood. They are positively and completely cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It imparts genuine health and strength to the womanly organs. It was devised for this one purpose by an eminent specialist in this particular field of practice.

"For several years I suffered with prolapsus of the uterus," writes Miss A. Lee Schuster, of Box 12, Rodney, Jefferson Co., Miss. "Our family physician treated me for kidney trouble, and everything else but the right thing. I grew worse and worse. My body was emaciated, hands and feet clammy and cold, stomach weak, with great palpitation of the heart. I dreaded for night to come for I would suffer with nausea all night and so I continued until some kind unknown friend sent me your book with a marked page. I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription,' contrary to my family's wishes, and I began to improve right away. I have taken three bottles and now I am very nearly well and am very happy, and thankful to you."

THE COLLEGE RUSH AND THE PRIZE RING

Last March there was a contest at Carson City in the prize ring between two trained athletes, whose muscles were almost as hard as tough as bickory. The vanquished in that contest, though stunned for ten or twelve seconds, was about on the streets of San Francisco the next day, apparently little the worse for the part he took in the contest. Nevada, because of this contest, which was no worse than fights which are licensed in the great cities almost daily, was held up to scorn and ridicule of the public in very many of the newspapers of the country and pictured as the most lawless and barbarous community on the continent. Now what is known as the "college rush" has taken place at the State University of California and one of the results is given in the papers as follows:

"Benjamin Kurtz, a newly entered Freshman, was found Monday night wandering about the campus after the rush between the lower classes. Half dazed, his jaw broken, his face a bleeding mass, he was taken in an examination made of his injuries. It was found that in the struggle some student had planted his heel in Kurtz's face, leaving a mark which will disfigure him for life, and producing probably permanent injury to his brain. A piece of flesh had been torn from one nostril, and the upper lip hung only by a ragged shred. All the front teeth had been knocked out. Four teeth had been knocked out of the lower jaw, and the jawbone was broken where they had been lodged. Both the upper and lower jaws were smashed."

Kurtz is a young man who was just admitted as a student at the University. He was not trained for fighting and did not anticipate such brutal treatment from his fellow students. He was kicked into insensibility, his jaws broken and his face disfigured for life. This brutality was permitted on the campus of the State University and the editor of the Occident, the students' organ, thinks it is "one of the finest of our University customs."

Strange as it may seem not one of the newspapers which so roundly denounced Nevada for permitting Corbett and Fitzsimmons to test their skill and powers of endurance in a ring have spoken harshly of, much less condemned those who maltreated young Kurtz and disfigured him for life or have a word to say against the University authorities who permit such outrages to be perpetrated under the guise of college sports.

GENERAL JAMES G. LONGSTREET, the famous Confederate, who surrendered during the war, became a Republican and was appointed United States Marshal for Georgia, has surrendered again, this time to Miss Ellen Dortch, and is to be married to-day in the Executive Mansion at Atlanta, Georgia. The old warrior was born in 1821 and graduated from West Point in 1842. He is 76 years of age and the bride is only 22. General Longstreet was a brave officer and served with distinction in the Mexican War, and that he is a brave old man is proved by his determination to marry a young lady of 22 years.

The wave of prosperity has struck Eureka county. The Sentinel says the total valuation of property in the county this year is $1,584,922 50, an increase over last year of $6,135. The Board of Equalization may possibly make some reductions, but it is not likely that the total will be materially changed. The increase in valuation is due to the rise in the price of cattle, which this year have been assessed at $12 per head instead of $10, the valuation placed on them in 1896. The tax levy outside of town is $2 42 as against $2 75 last year, and the levy in Eureka is $2 92 as against $3 25 in 1896.

The Dingley bill is not an unalloyed blessing, even from the point of view of manufacturers. On the first of the present month the employees of the Napoleon Tobacco company, Chicago, were notified that, owing to the increased cost of the material used, due to the Dingley bill, a cut in the wages of 20 per cent had to be made. The men struck against the reduction and now a smoke stack, that on November 3d of last year was belching smoke, presents a scene of inaction such as was portrayed by the Hanna posters picturing what would occur if Bryan were elected.—Ogden Standard.

SENATOR CHANDLER asserts that Section 22 of the Dingley bill was surreptitiously incorporated in the measure by the Conference Committee. Senator Frye, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, denies the allegation of Chandler, but admits that he does not know how the clause got into the bill.

THE real significance of that Franco-Russian alliance seems to be that France contracts to be Russia's ally and Russia contracts to let her have this privilege.

In the British troubles in India the enemy has retreated to Thal, but unless they are set back to Thal the war may be considered as still on.

A Recent Scientific Discovery in Leipzig.

Bacteria, dangerous to health and life, have been found in the air we breathe, the water we drink, in various kinds of food, and even in the mud-lage of the ubiquitous postage stamp, but it remained for the eminent German scientist, Dr. Warpmann, of Leipzig, to discover the poisonous bacteria living and thriving in ink.

He has recently made a microscopic examination of 67 samples of ink used in the schools in Germany and in other countries. Most of these were galls, and contain various sorts of bacteria, as well as those of other minute organisms known in the scientific world as saprophytes and micrococci. Nitrogen ink taken from a freshly opened bottle, which had up to that time been tightly corked and sealed, was found to contain bacteria in large quantities. Red and blue inks of the sort so frequently used in offices also yielded numerous bacteria.

To determine whether or not these bacteria were really as poisonous as chemical analysis would seem to suggest, Dr. Warpmann decided to "cultivate" some specimens for actual experiments. The result of these experiments showed that a bacillus from ordinary black ink would, if introduced into the blood of a mouse, prove fatal within four days. Similar experiments proved the danger to the interest of science performed upon other small animals—rabbits, guinea-pigs and the like—always with the same fatal result.

WANTS THE EARTH.

Russia Constantly Reaching Out for New Territory.

In his paper, the Spectator, the Russian general Komaroff publishes an article which contains the following remarkable passage, says the London News.

"The east, with all its countries, as China, Persia, Beluchistan and even India, is by the will of Providence destined for the Russian people. Sooner or later the east will be ours. In order, however, to attain this object we must guard our positions in the west and must be strong there, too. All our efforts must be directed there, all our thoughts and talents. There we must show ourselves genuine Russians. We must thwart the German intrigues and German tricks emanating from Berlin, and have a sharp eye to our real foes. If we retreat in the west, we lose everything in the east. Now in the west a matter comes to decision which is for us of vital importance, namely, the question of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles. The straits must by all means come into our possession for the sake of securing peace in the south, and for the sake of our own development—nay, even existence. In the straits we must be as strong as in the Vistula and in the Baltic. In preserving for ourselves the west we must above all be Slavs, and we must keep alive the consciousness of relationship in all the people of Slavonic nationality up to the Adriatic, those people being our real prop and support in the struggle against the greatest foe of our nation, namely, Germanism."

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

A stamp paper has discovered, in some mysterious way, that philatelists are nearly always musicians.

Plans are being perfected whereby senders of registered letters will be indemnified against loss to the amount of ten dollars. Claimants must show that the letter contained ten dollars, in order to recover the amount.

The new post office at Washington is rapidly nearing completion. It is one of the largest and most substantial post office buildings in the country, and, when finished, will have a cost nearly $3,000,000.

Miss Effie Crocker, of Port Washington, is the only woman mail carrier of which Long Island can boast. She is 23 years old. Six days of the week she goes sturdily about from Great Neck, L. I., around Manhasset to Port Washington and return. This does not mean the transportation of a few letters, but the daily carriage of a very considerable quantity of mail of all kinds.

SPARROW AND ELEPHANT.

A Contest That Was Decidedly Unequal.

A pugnacious sparrow the other day flew into the elephant house in the Central park menagerie and began picking up the crumbs from the table of the only elephant then inside. The mammoth and midgid apparently did not see each other for some time, says the New York Herald, until the former, in shifting his position, nearly placed his ponderous foot on the latter. The fighting little speck of fuss and feathers evidently accepted this thoughtless act as a challenge to battle, and at once flew in the elephant's face. The great beast looked astonished, and, sending a small cyclone through his trunk, raised such a cloud of hay and dust that the bird was lost sight of.

When the air cleared the bird was seen on the quadruped's back. A shake of the elephant's loosely fitting, tough though sensitive hide frightened the little fellow, who hopped to the floor and looked into the face of his antagonist.

Thus they stood, as though trying to recover breath, for a few seconds, when the elephant reached out his trunk toward the sparrow. The bird, with outstretched wings and ruffled feathers, threw himself with full force at the end of the threatening proboscis. Then came a gentle blast of air from the elephant's lungs, and the sparrow was blown against the wall of the house. The little fellow, without even so much as a parting look at his huge antagonist, mounted to the open window and disappeared.

Big Warerooms Containing Chairs in Hundreds and No Two Alike.

With the great development of the furniture industry in this country there has come about in recent years a subdivision of it into branches for greater facility and economy of production. Thus there are manufacturers who confine themselves to special lines of goods, as desks, tables, chairs, and so on, and these may sometimes be further subdivided, manufacturers devoting themselves to particular kinds or grades. Of chairs, for example, there are hundreds of manufacturers in the United States, many of them large establishments. The present total production of chairs in this country is about 36,000,000 annually, says the New York Sun.

While the manufacture of chairs is much subdivided, there may be in chairs of one kind, that is, of the same materials and made by the same processes of manufacture, many styles, and there are some establishments that produce chairs in great variety. There are single concerns that make as many as 500 different styles, and so in the wholesale furniture district of the city, there may be found large warerooms filled with chairs alone, the floor covered with them in long lines and the walls hung with them—hundreds of chairs, no two alike.

A Brilliant Scheme.

"I read with interest," writes a man from Topeka to the Atchison Globe, "your account of the usefulness of the hen in Klondike gold-mining, and will accept the suggestion. I leave for Klondike next week and will take with me a coop containing six hens and a rooster, instead of a pick and pan. I have figured it out that by turning my chickens loose they will scratch over more ground in one day than I could with a pick in a month. If each hen scratches up gold dust valued at $6,745 per season, and the young chickens go to scratching as soon as they are hatched, some idea of the wealth I will bring home may be obtained by your stationarian. I am counting on having 30 young chickens in the field within three months after I get there."

Sagacious Chinese Doctor.

No one disputed the dictum of a Chinese physician who had been called to attend a celestial who had fainted in a store at Portland, Ore., when the doctor said, after filling the prostrate man's mouth and nose with red paint: "Him blow out paint, him all same not yet dead; him no catch him wind, no blow out paint, him heap dead." The man did not blow out the paint, and the coroner was called.

Habeas Corpus Case.

The case of Crawford of Reno was before the Supreme Court on a habeas corpus proceedings. He threatened to kill his brother-in-law F. B. Porter, and was bound over by the Justice of the Peace under $1,000 bonds and six months in jail. It was taken under advisement.

LATER—A dispatch from Carson last evening concerning the petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of James Crawford, accused of disturbing the peace, says that the Supreme Court denied the writ. The Court does not pass upon the question of the guilt or innocence of the accused, as it claims that was the duty of the Justice of the Peace before whom Crawford was tried. Crawford gave bonds immediately upon hearing the decision of the Supreme Court and was released.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

A Comparison of English and American Cities.

The difference an American would discover in a consideration of English city government is the composition of the governing body, the city council. In the United States very generally the town is ruled by a mayor and a board of supervisors of limited number. The mayor has a veto upon ordinances passed by the board but otherwise the latter is free to act as it pleases. This power is, naturally, quite enormous in a large city where there are numerous municipal offices to be filled every four years and his position has often called forth justifiable tirades against one-man power and influence. While the mayor has the suspensory power of a veto, still, in many cases "a ring" in the board of supervisors will often find itself powerful enough to pass measures over his head no matter how valid his objections or strenuous his opposition.

These weaknesses and imperfections are met and overcome in the English system in several ways. The position of city councilmen is made a post of honor and a reward for assiduity and diligence in the management of city affairs and, like many other British offices, entirely without remuneration. In this way the best possible element is induced into politics and the ablest and most desirable citizens are induced to assume the burdens of civic activity. Then, too, the position of the mayor is lopped of all its discretionary power under the American system. In England the Lord Mayor acts merely as a figure head, represents the city on state occasions, calls to order the meetings of the city council, but otherwise acts only in the capacity of an ordinary councilman. The most essential difference in the two systems of government is the perfection and development which the committee system has attained under English influence. The entire municipal administration is accomplished in a number of committees who report periodically to the main body for general instructions but who otherwise have original and exclusive jurisdiction over the subjects that come under their cognizance. There is a committee on finance, one on health, one on public works, another on ordinance, etc., and each councilman must serve on at least two of these. The larger committees are sub-divided for matter of detail into sub-committees so that each councilman, besides his general duties in council, has a distinct portion of city administration resting directly on his shoulders. For illustration let us take the city of Glasgow.

Glasgow is divided for municipal purposes into twenty-five wards each electing three members to the town council, one of whom retires annually. These, together with the mayor or provost and two honorary guild deans, make a grand committee of seventy-eight which governs the city in all its affairs. The council appoints all its officers directly, selects all heads of departments and conditions the term of office only by good behavior and capacity to perform the work required by the position.

In order to form an estimate of the amount and an idea of the character of the work performed by one of these departments we will consider for a moment the sanitary or health department. A council committee of eighteen with sub-committees on cleansing and hospitals supervises the entire sanitary administration of the city. The department proper is under the control of a permanent medical officer of health who is relieved of the routine of administrative work by a chief sanitary inspector. The duties of the sanitary inspector are to see that the city is kept clean and that the health of the population is maintained. He is assisted by a staff of sanitary inspectors who are distributed throughout the city. The sanitary inspector is also responsible for the cleansing of the city and for the maintenance of the health of the population. He is assisted by a staff of sanitary inspectors who are distributed throughout the city. The sanitary inspector is also responsible for the cleansing of the city and for the maintenance of the health of the population. He is assisted by a staff of sanitary inspectors who are distributed throughout the city.

Under the chief inspector's authority are organized staffs of disinfecting officers, epidemic, nuisance, night, lodging-house, milk and food inspectors, to say nothing of analysts and clerks employed in the central offices. The experience which Glasgow has undergone with typhus, smallpox and cholera induced the city to build a municipal epidemic hospital and the undertaking was followed by such good results that a duplicate was not long in putting in an appearance. In conjunction with these hospitals are large sanitary wash-houses with tubs and machinery for cleaning apparel removed from the houses. These establishments are open to all persons in need of such services and are supplied with articles of clothing, soap, etc., at a nominal cost. The wash-houses are also supplied with disinfecting machinery and the apparatus for disinfecting with chemicals, straining and boiling must not be overlooked. In all, this department has the health and hygiene of the city so constantly under its critical scrutiny that Glasgow, though one of the most densely populated cities in the world, has little to fear from plague and disease.

In close affiliation with the sanitary department and under the supervision of the same general committee of the council is the cleansing department. This department embraces the scavenging of all courts and back yards forming a common access to lands and heritages separately occupied, the scavenging and watering of all streets and roads within the city, and the collection, removal and disposal of all night soil, general domestic refuse and detritus. The streets are swept nightly by twenty three-horse machines and the sweepings and other garbage is gathered by men and boys and sent in covered vans to dispatch stations. Here everything is dumped on a sorting floor and, after a little raking to remove larger articles, is shovelled through hatchways into railroad cars waiting beneath. The contents of ash bins is sent through great revolving riddles and revolving machines and, while the large coals and cinders are saved for use in the establishment boilers, the fine ashes and dust pass through to the floor below and meet with the discharges of trucks holding excrementa. In this way the city's refuse is turned into a serviceable fertilizer and sold for miles around to the thrifty Scotch farmers. The total ordinary expenditure including interest of this department amounted in 1888 to $370,000. Sales of fertilizing manures brought in a revenue of $130,000 and, after deducting the expense of private court scavenging met by special assessment, there remained only $190,000 of general charge to be paid out of the rates for an admirable and complete service of street cleansing and watering and of domestic scavenging for a population of nearly 600,000—a net cost per capita of only about 35 cents.

Thus far we have described only those municipal operations which it is the duty of all well governed cities to undertake for their citizens, but Glasgow, not content with these successes, started upon a line of operations almost unexampled in scope and magnitude. In some cases the city has even entered into competition with private capital and undertaken enterprises which till then had always been delegated to the field of individual initiative. Not content with owning her own water works, lighting system and street car lines, she lately has made extensive investments in municipal tenement houses where rooms are rented to families for very reasonable amounts and, to cap the climax, has constructed a city laundry where for a small sum the patient housewife may have the use of modern washing machinery and after an hour's work proceed home with her clothes washed, dried and ironed.

Perhaps the greatest task accomplished by the city was the tapping of Loch Katrine, thirty-four miles distant in the Highlands, to secure an unpoluted and adequate water supply. Previously the city's water had been supplied from the river Clyde by two private water companies, but the development in the Clyde Valley and the increase of population rendered the supply inefficient and extremely impure and unsanitary. The necessary powers were obtained from parliament, the city bought out the existing companies, built an aqueduct and soon supplied its citizens with water pure and fresh at rates far below the company prices and still high enough to not the city $200,000 a year. The city's water supply is now pure and fresh at rates far below the company prices and still high enough to not the city $200,000 a year. FOR SIX MONTHS

Wife-Kater Anderson recently arrested.

Thos. Anderson, who was convicted of battery upon his wife, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the County Jail.

His attorney, John R. Tyrrell, made a strong plea for mercy, but Judge Holbrook, after listening attentively to his remarks, reminded the defendant that the law's limit was six months' imprisonment and a fine of $100. He then sentenced him to six months' imprisonment.

After the trial yesterday the defendant made a public exhibition of himself by getting beastly drunk. He was put into a cart and started for home, but when half way there he took notice to put his driver out and handle the reins himself. He came back to Nevada City and drove through the streets, to the consternation of other drivers. Fortunately the horse was sober and turned out for passing vehicles, though the cart finally struck the National Hotel bus on Broad street bridge. Anderson was not thrown out, but later on was overhauled by some friends, who took charge of him.

At Grass Valley, this morning, the case of Mrs. Anderson, charged with shooting her husband, was called in Justice Trebilcock's court. Anderson refused to testify against his wife, so the case was dismissed.—Nevada City Herald.

The relay race at the track next Sunday promises to be an exciting event. The Reno and Carson teams will contest for supremacy and it is said that over half of Carson will be here to witness the race. The Reno wheelmen are arranging the details.

The Silent Reaper.

Mrs. Mary E. Mans, an early and highly respected resident of Reno, was called from her earthly home at an early hour yesterday morning. She had lived to see her children and a number of grandchildren grow to manhood and womanhood, and this was a source of great comfort and happiness to her. Her life had been an active one, and, notwithstanding that she had passed three score years and ten, she was gifted with a wonderful memory and could relate incidents that had occurred more than a half century ago, giving details as correctly as though they had happened but yesterday.

She was devoted to her late husband, who died a year ago, and his death almost broke her heart, and when conversing with friends always referred to him with the tenderness of words and never grew tired of talking about him.

In the Mexican War she was active and for a time served as a nurse. At that time she met her husband and the acquaintance resulted in their marriage at the close of the war. She was a pioneer on the coast, having arrived in '49, and her knowledge of the early days of California and Nevada was complete. She was an affectionate wife and an indulgent and kind mother, whose pride was centered in her children and grandchildren. As a neighbor, she never failed to respond, where sickness or trouble called for her aid or sympathy or when charity asked for recognition, her hand was ever open as far as her means would allow.

Death came after an illness of only a few days, notwithstanding the efforts of loving relatives and friends, and the warm heart was stilled, the kindly eyes closed and the dear voice hushed forever. She has completed her mission on earth and has gone to the reward that awaits her.

She leaves a family of five daughters—Mrs. H. L. W. Knox of Reno, Mrs. Mary J. Horan of Williams, Cal., Mrs. Minnie Bowmer of Olympia, Wash., Mrs. A. S. Nevils of Oroville, Cal., Miss Lillian Mans of the Gazette of this city—and a son, George, of Oregon, and a number of grandchildren.

The funeral will take place from the Catholic Church this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Wines! Wines! Wines!

A. T. Dornio & Co., opposite the depot, have just received a large consignment of wines which will be sold at a 25 per cent reduction. They are of Santa Clara and Santa Rosa vintage and are of the purest quality. Just the thing for medicinal and family use. Read the list: Zinfandel, Maderia, Angelica, Tokay, Port, Sherry, Catawba, Claret, Reisling and others, also imported Italian wines and grape brandy.

District Court.

The District Court was occupied yesterday in hearing the case of Geo. D. Smith vs. Tremore Coffin. Mr. Smith says Mr. Coffin for groceries and supplies furnished Mr. Coffin's employees in certain mines in the vicinity of Washoe Valley. The most of the day was taken up in taking the testimony of witnesses.

Call at Muller & Stumpf's Patent agency for fine California and imported wines for family and medicinal purposes. Sherry, port, muscatel, angelica and all dry wines by the gallon. Open every day until 8 o'clock.
